Universal Google

It's a fact that you get answers to the questions you ask. This works on a physical-world level as well as on the Universal level. If you want to know what wines are available in a restaurant, you don't ask the waiter, "Do you have any fish on the menu?" Instead you ask, "What wines are available?" And then you get the answer. If you don't like the answer -- perhaps the waiter says, "We have wines from California." -- then you rephrase your question and get more specific, i.e., "Do you have any merlot?"

The same goes for Life Questions. When you're trying to change your life in some area, be aware of the questions you are asking, because the Universe and Inner Guidance work very similarly to a search engine like Google. If you say to yourself, "Why don't I ever have enough money to pay all my bills?" your conscious and subconscious minds will search for all kinds of reasons as to why this situation exists, most of them negative and not helpful: that you don't work hard enough, you spend too much, you shouldn't have bought that cheesecake last week, etc., etc.

However, if you phrased the question differently, you'd get totally different results. "How can I live comfortably and pay all my monthly bills?" will lead to very different messages popping up that offer you solutions and relief.

The answers are available to ANY situation you'd like to improve. Make use of the fabulous Universal Google System, narrowing your search to only those suggestions that are positive and provide forward momentum.

Putting it into Practice

Start your Universal Google System now

Try putting Universal Google to the test right now. Pick an area in your life that is troubling you. Ask the "normal" kind of question that implies you're stuck in some kind of mess. Notice some of the negative messages that come back to you and how you feel -- usually not too good. Then rephrase the question, or ask a different question. Phrase it positively, focusing on the outcome you desire, not on the problem or your perceived lack of resources. Notice how the results that come back from this positively-phrased question are more like suggestions or ideas or action steps to take to improve your situation, rather than the blame and negativity that come from negative questions. Notice how you feel after getting these suggestions and ideas. Those feelings of relief and self-empowerment are clues that you're on a solution-based path and are in a more positive vibration.

From this new space, try to come up with another, even more empowering question to ask, and watch as the results come back from Universal Google to lead you towards something you desire, rather than keeping you stuck in the negative situation. Universal Google will keep working on your question all day (and night), and sometimes an answer will pop spontaneously into your mind that is such a great idea you'll be amazed. The process is:

- (1) Ask self-empowering, positively-phrased questions;
- (2) Stay in the vibration of looking for solutions and signposts on your path; don't slip back into self-blame or despair;
- (3) Be alert and act on ideas that come to you in response to your questions. Acting on these ideas is taking inspired action.
