Is the world falling apart?

Does it feel as if the world is falling apart? Does it seem as if there are systems breaking down everywhere?

Here's what I think: I believe we are all in a time of re-awakening to everything that is possible in a world populated by conscious, loving, aware, connected beings. That means, as each of us becomes more aware that we are all interconnected, and starts making choices to treat our neighbors as we would like to be treated, that we will see the world around us re-created in a kinder, gentler pattern.

And if you think about it a moment, who wouldn't want a world where we treat each other and the Earth herself with more love and care? The old systems that are falling apart right now NEED to fall apart because they no longer serve us as we move into the new paradigm of living in mutual respect and love, knowing that we are, truly, One.

Really -- couldn't we come up with a banking system that serves the customers' needs as well as it does the bankers? And the last time you paid your auto insurance premium -- didn't you feel it was inflated and unfair? Surely we could design something new in its place. Some of our systems have needed a re-haul for a while, and now we're getting a chance to think about and put into place the design for a world where we would really like to live. Instead of arguing and struggling to keep outdated behemoths alive, why don't we consider designing new structures?

Think of all the "green" products that have come to market in the past couple of years... and the world-wide efforts to provide adequate food and water to everyone... and all the other efforts that have been born out of an awareness that the way things WERE just wasn't working.

Right now, while things are seeming to fall apart, is an excellent time to put our minds toward creating the world as we would like it to be -- a world of plenty and abundance, health and beauty, kindness and love. For all.

Putting it into Practice

What you can do on a daily basis

So let's just say that you agree with what I said above about creating a better world... or at least you are willing to think about the concept. Where do you come in? What can you do?

Think. Visualize. Resonate. The outward, physical world is created by the thoughts, beliefs and feelings that are inside us. Each one of us has a role in creating a better world. If you spend even a little time each day imagining a more prosperous and generous humanity, you will be contributing to that vibration. And if half a million other humans think about the same thing for just a little time each day, can you imagine the flow of energy that would be circulating the planet, resonating with everything that is prosperous and generous? Now what if each and every human being on the planet was thinking about it, visualizing it, resonating with it -- and then acting it out?

Oh yeah. That's the other step. Acting out your visualizations in the physical world. BE the being of generosity, kindness, friendliness and love you wish to see in the world. Create the vision with your thoughts, then bring it into being with your actions.

Join in the world-wide movement and, more importantly, contribute to it with the energy of your thoughts, intentions and actions. We're all counting on you.
