May The Source be with you

"Luke, may The Force be with you."

I'm thinking that Obi-Wan might have gotten his words mixed up. What he probably meant was, "May The Source be with you."

Think about this with me for a minute. If we nurtured our connection to Source Energy, God, The Universe, whatever you want to call It -- if we made sure to start out every day and begin every task with a re-alignment of our connection -- can you imagine how much more powerful and satisfying our days would be?

If you were going through your daily life, not taking action on your own, but with the full resources of Source Energy behind you -- can you imagine the meaning you would bring to everything you do, the compassion and love, the creativity and unlimitedness?

Who wouldn't want to live their lives with an intimate connection to their Higher Power, perpetually plugged into THE Power Source?

So here's my new blessing to everyone I come in contact with:

May The Source be with you!

Putting it into Practice

How to plug into The Source

I've added a new coaching service called "Emergency Coaching."

This is for those times when you feel your back's against the wall, the world's gone crazy, and you need help finding your

1. Ask. Ask your Higher Power or your Higher Self to help you align with it.
2. Quiet yourself. Whether it's for a 30-minute meditation or a 3-second deep breath done with the conscious decision to center, every time you choose to re-direct your mind away from the external noise and toward the internal knowingness, you are strengthening that connection between you and Source Energy.
3. Check In. When you choose to grow quiet and check in with your Source, you will allow Its wisdom to funnel through you. Let intuition and inner guidance help you make any and every decision.

Q. Suzanne, I just today noticed a mistake I made on my vision board. The only man I had on it was Kevin Costner. Wow, I have had about two dates in a year. [and, she's met Kevin Costner twice] The men I have attracted are very possessive before we even meet. They say point blank "I want to talk to you on the phone every night."

My last relationship was 18 months ago.

How can I correct it? Or should I do a new vision board and what kind of things should I put on my vision board to attract a good man? - C.C., Missouri

A. Wow, isn't that something? The amazing power of visualization! A number of years ago I had a vision board depicting international travel, which manifested for me quite quickly in an opportunity to study French in France for 6 weeks. I felt lonely while there, though, and didn't enjoy it as much as I thought I would. When I took another look at that vision board months later, I realized I'd only put pictures of a woman traveling, no companions. You can bet I put entirely different pictures on the next one!

So, good question about how to "fix" the situation. Go with what feels right to you, whether it's pasting additional pictures on top of the existing board or making a new one. There are several other ways to approach vision boarding, something I go into in my "Activating the Love Vibe" e-coaching course.

As far as how to attract a good mate, it's essential in this vibrational universe to be really clear about what you are seeking, so that's the first step. Then by strengthening and intensifying the vibration you send out in regards to love, you will actually be lining yourself up with circumstances and people that vibrate along with you -- including that Special Someone you're hoping to find.

Center in the storm.

The Love Vibe telecourse on my website has three hours of audio and a workbook designed to help anyone who desires a strong connection in a loving relationship (whether it's an existing relationship, a wished-for mate, and/or more loving relations with friends and family). If I had to distill it down into one short phrase, it would be this: Be Love. BE love. By that I mean: bring up feelings of love and appreciation for yourself, for others, and for your world. Express love in any way you can, all throughout your day. Plug in to what love means and how you can show it to the world around you.

"Love is all around me, and so the feeling grows."
